On A Beautiful Day

The sky ain't always gloomy
When we want it to be
And the sun won't always set (Just when) it would be right with me

Grief may hit you in the middle of Your happiest ever timt
And things you didn't know existing may suddenly break your spine

There's no right time for darkness to fall
And there's no right time for everything to stall
There's a kind of bitter truth, that no one can explain, that's why
Sometimes people die on a beautiful day

Lovers always leave
When they shouldn't leave
People leave you marooned
When you want them to believe

Fortune always expires
When the cards seem to be dealt right
And the battle always begins
When you're not ready to fight

There's no right time for a heart to petrify
And there's no right time for someone to make you cry
There's days you won't be heard, no matter how hard you pray, that's why sometimes your world collapses on a beautiful day

For some things, there's no right time at all
Were not prepared to fly, where not prepared to fall
All our hopes and fears in the end might be in vain, that's why
Sometimes you have to smile when it rains
And sometimes your dreams come true on a beautiful day